DETAILED ACTION

35 USC § 101

1. Claims 1-23 are now statutory as per the most recent guidance pertaining to the Interim Guidelines regarding 35 U.S.C. 101. Independent claims 1 and 23 contain a useful, concrete, and tangible result – pronunciation specifics of an output speech word. Independent claim 15 pertains to a computer readable medium containing executable instructions causing a computer to eventually produce pronunciation specifics of an output speech word.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-23 are allowable over the prior art of record.

3. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

As per claims 1-23, the claim limitations pertaining to the selection of a subset of characters for pronunciation choosing/selecting/changing by the user is not explicitly taught by the prior art of record.

With respect to the prior art of record, it is old and well known to allow a user to choose pronunciations. For example, Huang et al (5933804) teaches allowing the user to change the pronunciation of words (Fig. 5a, 5b, and 5c); however, Huang et al does not detail the user to choose a subset of characters for pronunciation purposes (Huang allows the user to change/alter the pronunciation of words). Blackmer (5393236) does not teach a person teaching software the pronunciation of letter groups or words but software for teaching a person the correct pronunciation of words in a given language.
